Damon Connolly was sworn in January 6, 2015 as the District 1 Supervisor, representing San Rafael and its unincorporated neighborhoods. Through his seven years as City Council member for the City of San Rafael, Damon worked hard to sustain the city's vibrant local economy, protecting vital public services during the economic downturn, and balancing the budget. He made City Hall more responsive to the needs of San Rafael's neighborhoods, helped expand transportation options for local residents, and worked to reduce San Rafael's contribution to climate change. Damon was a member of the Marin Clean Energy Board of Directors, serving since the agency's inception in December 2008, and chaired the board from June, 2011 to November, 2014.

Before opening his own law practice in San Rafael, Damon was a Supervising Deputy California Attorney General, prosecuting the energy companies that gouged our state during the energy crisis of 2000-2001.

Damon brings the skills and experience he gained while on the City Council and the Dixie School District Board, to strengthening the relationships between the County, our city and schools on behalf of the residents and neighborhoods we serve. Looking at the challenges and opportunities that face the people of our district and the County, Damon will be focusing on engaging all of our residents in a variety of new and exciting ways. It is equally important that we hear from community members on a regular basis, so that we can stay as aware and ahead of the issues facing our district and community as possible.

A Bay Area native, Damon attended college and law school at UC Berkeley. He has lived in San Rafael for the past eighteen years with his wife, Dawn, and their two daughters.

Katie Rice – Supervisor

Katie was raised in Mill Valley and graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1978. She attended Sonoma State University, receiving degrees in Liberal Studies and English. For the past 20 years, Katie has lived in San Anselmo. She has three children: Kellam, 27, Jamie, 24 and Aiden, 17.

Katie's engagement in public service long pre-dates her tenure with County government and is the foundation of her understanding of the depth of residents' concerns for their neighborhoods, schools, community benefit organizations and open space.

Protection of Marin's environmental resources is a core, long-standing value for Katie. Growing up surrounded by and actively engaged in the outdoors and environmental causes, Katie is committed to the protection of our natural resources. She is a proud graduate of the 31st class of the Marin Environmental Forum, a renowned environmental leadership training program.

As Hal Brown's long-term aide and as current District 2 Supervisor, Katie played key roles in a number of successful initiatives, most notably the establishment of the Ross Valley Watershed Preservation and Flood Protection Program. This initiative resolved a 30 year impasse to establish a regional approach to chronic flooding in the Ross Valley. The solutions now available have the capacity for significant and multiple community benefits – not only flood protection, but also environmental restoration, recreation and community infrastructure improvements. Implementing the projects will require collaborative leadership and the ability to promote and sustain broad community involvement.

The full range of her experiences – a personal family history of deep community and environmental service, growing up in Marin, work as a journalist, personal commitment to community service, activities in County government – form Katie's understanding and working knowledge of the people, places and needs of Marin, reflect her love for this place, and underpin the drive to make a difference in and to protect the future of our County.

Judy's father was an attorney in Kansas City, who would have been in the foreign service but for an emergency appendectomy at American University, followed by recovery and a return to college in Kansas. He has probably been the biggest influence on Judy's interest in government.

Judy attended Goucher College in Baltimore, MD for two years and graduated from the University of Kansas with a degree in International Relations. She then worked for the Peace Corps in Washington D.C. when Sargent Shriver was its head and John Kennedy was President. When Judy came to Marin in 1966, she knew this was where she wanted to be. John Reed – Councilmember, Town of Fairfax

After reading “Silent Spring” in 6th grade, I became an avid environmentalist. Thrilled with the first Earth Day in 1969, I had found my tribe.

Initially there was no Green Party. Imagine my joy when it started. Seeing the need for the same ideas in the mainstream parties got me to register Democratic for a decade or so. With the new open primary in California, it seemed there was no reason to keep my registration with the Democrats, so recently I moved back to the Green camp. The Green Party represents many of the views I hold dear.

I believe that nothing is more important than dealing with climate change. Other things that the Green Party endorses are also very worthy, but this one issue rises above all. Over the years, I have worked organizing against Nukes, for the American Friends Service Committee, War Resisters League, and as a Bicycle advocate. I have also been a huge proponent of local community. I have worked locally to bridge the gap between various factions and bring people together around issues that we agree on.

After years of requests from community members, I agreed to run for Town Council along with Pam Hartwell-Herrero in 2009. Pam and I got to know each other when we were both running non-profits here in the Fairfax Community.

My local work on bike advocacy started with the recognition that Fairfax could not apply for transportation grants, as CalTrans did not have some essential information on file. I assembled this information in a document, got it approved by Planning staff, Police, Planning Commission, and the Town Council, and finally got the information filed at the State. It was my introduction to government bureaucracy, and the structures on which good decisions depend.

A couple of years later, this ability to get grants for infrastructure was vital as a small group of us developed a bike/walk program at our local school. This subsequently evolved into Safe Routes to School, a national program, which started here in Fairfax. I also became involved with writing the Town’s General Plan, which is a document that guides future development, zoning, and qualities of life in Fairfax. I thought it important that our “blueprint” for the future of Fairfax have clear guidelines for sustainability, bike and pedestrian friendly infrastructure, good energy practices, and to limit changes to those that support our unique cultural environment. Fairfax is the great town that it is today because residents really care about preserving what makes it unique, and have for decades. My work on the general plan ensures that continuance, at least for its 20 year horizon.

For about 6 years, I also served as the chair of the Volunteer Board, where we worked on many activities that brought various factions of the community together, such as repairing some of the over 100 pedestrian trails throughout town, coordinating response to a devastating flood, initiating an annual Town Wide Picnic, Chipper Days (to reduce fire danger), and dozens of other activities that helped our community. At the conclusion of this time Pam and I ran for Council.

While on the Council, I have championed working together to achieve a balanced approach to Town governance, where all parties are heard and considered. As a representative for Fairfax on regional Boards and Commissions, I play a slightly different role. For instance, in my seat on the Transportation Authority of Marin County, I find myself pitching alternative transportation, and thinking outside of the box, rather than just talking about freeways. Since we have a fairly progressive-minded group of elected officials in Marin, I find this quite effective.

Below is a list of items that I either initiated or took a key role in while on the Town Council:

- Initiated a Community Discussion on Smart Meters
- Stewarded a feasibility study on the East West Bikeway
- Worked to start a Local Currency in Fairfax (the FairBuck)
- Moved the Town's Banking Accounts from B of A to Bank of Marin
- Worked successfully to find Mortgage Refi solutions for Residents
- Moved Fairfax to support AB 750, for a State Bank
- Added Chipper Day Funding to Marin Sanitary Contract
- Good Earth Foods moves, Community Meetings, solve several problems
- Held Gas Fracking Symposium
- White Hill School Bike and Pedestrian Access Path
- Manor Sidewalk project completed
- Got stalled SF Drake Bike Lane project moving forward
- Passed the General Plan, a culmination of a 10-year effort on my part
- Streets for People Event
- Oversaw adding Ross to Fire JPA
- Facilitated several EV Charging Stations in town
- Chipper Days at the Pavilion (Fire Danger Project)
- Bike Spine Project Approval – safety project for kids on bikes
- Secured Funding for Bike and Pedestrian improvements to Broadway, Downtown
